Wicklow Grand Hotel to stay open

The Grand Hotel in Wicklow is to remain open following the approval of its examinership scheme in the High Court yesterday by Judge Mary Finlay-Geoghegan.

Creditors approved the proposed terms of the examinership scheme at a meeting in Wicklow last week.

As a result, all 50 jobs are to be saved at the historic hotel in the centre of the town.

The hotel will operate under new management, with Veronica Timlin, formerly of the Gresham Hotel and the Ormonde Hotel, assuming the position of general manager.
